CAN'T PARK IN 10 FEET OF PLUG

City Will Enforce Rigidity Provision of Traffic Ordinance Regarding Fire Hydrants.

MAY SOLVE PARKING EVIL

At Least, it Will Help, is the Opinion of Many—White Lines Painted on Streets.

White lines have been painted on the brick streets and sidewalks in the business district, giving the distance automobiles will be permitted to park at the street corners and alleys in relation to the fire hydrants. The regulation is not a new one as it is provided in the traffic ordinance that machines must not park within twenty feet of the street corners and fire plugs.

The reason for the white lines is to call attention to the fire hydrants and prevent the machines from coming too close to them. The traffic ordinance has not been rigidly enforced for some time and many auto drivers have paid little attention to the provisions regarding the parking near fire plugs and street crossings.

The white lines were painted under the direction of Fire Chief Easley. While they are not placed at the twenty feet limit they are placed far enough to make the hydrants easy to get to in case of a fire. The lines are extended up on the sidewalks so the drivers of the machines can easily see them.

This traffic regulation may be the start towards solving the auto parking problem, it is stated. One of the chief objections to the parking of the machines in the business district was from the danger in case of a fire. With the machines parked at a safe distance from the fire plugs a large part of this danger is eliminated.

It is almost certain that there will be no radical steps taken towards regulating the parking of machines. The city council does not believe it should take the responsibility of passing a parking ordinance and the merchants of the city do not wish to offend any one by asking for an ordinance. This was clearly shown last Tuesday night. The merchants were asked to go before the council on the parking question and one man appeared.

City officials state that if the problem can be solved without passing any law it would be better for all concerned. One merchant stated today that he believed a majority of the country people were against any law here in Rushville calling for the parking of machines. The parking question is believed to be a "dead one" here, at least for this summer.

SWEET IS SEVENTH TO GO TO THE FARM

Sheriff Cavitt Takes Man Sent up
For 90 Days to State Institution Thursday.

NOT AS MUCH AS HE EXPECTED

Sheriff Cavitt took Charles Sweet to the state penal farm near Greencastle Thursday. Sweet was convicted in police court Wednesday afternoon on a "blind tiger" charge and fined $90 to which was added 90 days at the penal farm. Sweet increases the Rushville colony at the farm to seven members.

That Sweet was well satisfied with the verdict is shown by what he said to his wife following the returning of the verdict. After Sweet had been sentenced by Mayor Bebout, Mrs. Sweet broke down and cried. Her husband told her to stop crying saying "that's nothing to cry about as I thought I would get more than that."

BAND CONCERT BRINGS BIG CROWD

Many Persons on Streets For Hour's Program, Including Solos by Earl Robertson.

COME FROM OUTSIDE CITY

The Odd Fellows' band pleased a large crowd of people with a concert on the public square last night. Although it was brief, the concert was counted among the best efforts of the band. Many persons living outside of the city came to Rushville in their automobiles and enjoyed the concert. The sidewalks in the vicinity of the bandstand on both sides of Main street were jammed with people, making passage along them almost impossible. The streets were also lined with vehicles so that the police had trouble keeping a passageway opened up for traffic.

Earl Robertson was the soloist with the band last night. He first sang "Dream Days." He is ever popular here and the crowd applauded incessantly until he responded with another number. The band management has promised many features to entertain the crowds with the weekly concerts.

THIRD DAY WILL BE ATTRACTIVE

On Tuesday of Chautauqua Both
Helen Keller and Welsh Singers
Will be on the Program.

TWO CONCERTS TO BE GIVEN

Educational Marvel of Modern Times Will Talk on "Happiness" in Evening at 7:30 O'clock.

Tuesday, the third day of the Rush county chautauqua, will be one of the bright and shining spots on the program. The committee had already counted on Tuesday as one of the big days when it first put the Royal Welsh Male Singers on the program for that day, but when Helen Keller was procured for the third day of the chautauqua, there wasn't any doubt about the quality of the program for that day.

The Welsh singers will give a concert at two o'clock. At three-thirty o'clock Dr. Geisel will lecture. At seven-thirty in the evening Helen Keller will lecture and at 8:45 o'clock the Welshmen will give another concert.

The story of Helen Keller and her teacher, Mrs. John Macy, formerly Miss Sullivan, is one of the most marvelous educational stories of modern times. Miss Keller became blind and deaf at the age of nineteen months and although she has not been able to use the senses of sight and hearing since then, she has, through the most patient and skillful teaching of Mrs. Macy, become a highly educated woman. She was graduated from Radcliff College, the female department of Harvard, 1914, receiving the degree of B. A. Cum laude (with honor.) It would seem incredible that a person who practically could never see or hear should be able to take up higher education and even, as has been the case, become the author of books which she wrote in college. "The Story of My Life," has been translated into fifteen languages.

Mrs. Macy will in her lecture describe the circumstances which led to her becoming the teacher of Miss Keller and will detail the methods by which she instructed Miss Keller and thus opened the outside world to her, which seemed locked forever. All who have had anything to do with the training of children realize how almost superhuman must have been the task of teaching Miss Keller to speak for the first time.

Mrs. Macy will demonstrate her method of communicating with Miss Keller. These lectures will prove interesting to people who will thus have an opportunity very early to hear these world renowned people.

Helen Keller in her first appearance in Rushville will show the general public that sensitiveness of her hand which her friends have been familiar with for many years.

From infancy Helen Keller's hands have served her as eyes and ears; her finger tips are so acutely sensitive that she can not only read character in the hands of those she meets, but seldom makes a mistake in remembering people by the touch of their hands. A short while ago, Miss Keller met a few old friends and some new ones in her hotel parlor. The hands of the old friends were clasped eagerly and with a quick responsive greeting. One of the gentlemen present she had met but once—the day before—but as soon as she felt his fingers, she called him by name and spoke of the previous meeting.

"The hands of those I meet are dumbly eloquent to me," said Miss Keller. "The touch of some hands is an impertinence. I have met people

WARSAW WILL BE RAZED BY FLAMES

Germans Hear Their Goal Will be Set on Fire by Russians Before They Evacuate It.

MEN ARE ASSIGNED TO TASK

(By United Press.)

Berlin, July 22.—Warsaw is to be set in flames by the Russians and destroyed when Von Hindenberg's forces penetrate the last line of defenses before the city, according to information that reached here today.

The grand duke Nicholas is said capital shall not fall into the hands of the Germans with the government buildings and churches unscathed. He is reported to have assigned groups of men to the task of applying the torch all over the city when the Germans close in and force his armies to evacuate.

In confirmation of reports that the Russians are destroying everything in their retreat, dispatches received here this afternoon said the Slavs set fire to the principal buildings in Linau before evacuating the seaport.

The state public service commission has authorized Frank P. Lyons, Warren M. Knapp and Albert R. Martner to buy the property of the Spiceland Co-operative Telephone company for $14,500.

AMERICAN NOTE IS DISPATCHED

Reply to German Correspondence is Said to be in Nature of a Final Statement.

"UNFRIENDLY" IS WORD USED

Document Leaves Washington Wednesday Night and Reaches Berlin Some Time Thursday.

BULLETIN.

London, July 22.—The exchange Telegraph Amsterdam correspondent cabled the following today:

"Anti-American feeling in Berlin is again bitter on account of the published forecasts of the American reply in the Lusitania matter. The general opinion is that the situation is serious, as Germany is now prepared to modify her attitude."

(By United Press.)

Washington, July 22.—The German note was sent forward from Washington to Berlin at nine o'clock last night, state department officials announced today. It is believed practically all of the note had reached Berlin by ten o'clock this morning.

The note was sent by way of Copenhagen and will be decoded and translated in Berlin by Ambassador Gerar today for presentation to the German foreign office probably by Friday morning. Secretary of State Lansing is expected to make public contents of the document as soon as at has been delivered to the Berlin government. News of the dispatch came like a thunder clap. The administration had kept its plans so secret that not the slightest inkling had gained currency of its action until, as it was believed, most of the message had actually reached its destination.

Continuation of friendly German-American relations depend on the kaiser.

If the Lusitania incident is repeated in the case of another ship with the sacrifice of more American lives, a diplomatic break may result. This plain and emphatic warning was given in the American note which Secretary Lansing signed about seven o'clock last evening in the white house in President Wilson's presence and its transmission began two hours later.

Transmission, owing to the number of relays and the necessity for repetition backward to avoid errors, was slow, it was said, but Lansing said the communication would be decoded at the Berlin embassy and presented at the German foreign office Friday. He said it would be made public here Saturday.

The note is in the nature of a final statement by the United States of the interpretation that will be placed by this Government on future transgressions of American rights, and repeats that the American Government will leave nothing undone to stand by the position it has previously declared. Among the points in the new note are:

1. The assumption by the United States that Germany, by declaring submarine warfare to be a retaliatory measure against the alleged unlawful acts of her enemies, has admitted that the destruction of the unresisting merchantmen without warning is illegal.

2. German submarine commanders already have proved that they can save the passengers and crews of vessels and can act in conformity with the laws of humanity in making war on enemy ships.

3. The United States cannot allow the relations between the belligerents to operate in any way

Mary Fuller, as charming and dainty as ever, is featured in "The Girl Who Had a Soul," a Victor three-reel drama. The play, as a whole, teaches us that there is an instinct within us that "reaches the towers, till groping blindly above us for light it climbs to a soul in the grass and the flowers," and we are sure it will be one of Mary's best pictures. Tomorrow, matinee and night we will show a great flood picture, "The Torrent." This picture was made on the opening day at Universal City, and was witnessed by 50,000 people and they all declare it was the greatest picture they ever saw. In the great scene of the bursting dam, millions of gallons of water are released in one huge devastating flood. We will personally guarantee this picture to be first class in every respect.

The Republicans of Virginia cast one-fourth of all the votes in that State. The State government is Democratic, of course, and there is but one Republican on any of the various State boards or commissions. He holds a place in the agricultural bureau. This is the rule in Southern States; and in some Northern States where Democracy rules. In Republican States, however, there is always a minority representation on State boards—which indicates a spirit of tolerance foreign to the Democratic party. Now the Democratic platforms, State and National, are always found crying out against "Republican partisanship."

The statement of the National Treasury for Saturday, July 10 showed a balance of $73,963,615.53 on hand as compared with a balance of $136,343,611.17 covering the same items, two years ago, when Republican laws governed revenues and disbursements. The deficit as represented by the excess of all disbursements over all revenues for the fiscal year up to July 10th was $11,241,156.46.

Those who believe that Mr. Bryan has lost his hold upon his former followers will do well to reflect upon the news from San Francisco. Mr. Bryan made a speech at the Exposition there on Independence Day. The weather was raw, the wind was biting and misty. Mr. Bryan spoke out of doors. Yet the crowd that came, and stayed, and cheered him was the largest he has ever addressed in all his career.

The western revenue district of Missouri wants to be shown. In 1915 the people of that district paid $533,952 more in "war taxes" than they did in 1914. They do not believe the second year of the Wilson Administration was worth that much more to them.

A palmist who has studied the lines of Bryan's hands says they "denote poignant disappointments." And yet it appears that the most poignant of disappointments now in Bryan's hands is destined for someone else. To wit, for Woodrow Wilson.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

Root and Watson.

(Terre Haute Tribune.)

The Chicago Tribune has taken a canvas of leading men throughout country, and has arrived at the conclusion that Elihu Root is the logical person to be nominated for the presidency by the Republicans in 1916. If the pendulum is swinging back to absolute conservatism there is no man more logical than Root. Too, if the search is to be prolonged to find a logical running mate for Mr. Root, a logical man for the vice presidency, we submit the name of Mr. James Eli Watson of our own beloved state. Neither Root nor Watson has any qualms when presenting his claims as a conservative. Mr. Roosevelt and his followers were perfectly obvious of this fact when they felt the boot of these two eminent Republicans in the Chicago convention, and the keenest diagnostician of public events has failed ever since to detect the slightest remorse on the part of either of the statesmen. If the trend of the public is back from progressive democracy to hog-tight caucus rule, if the people are to reinstate commercial government which found its finest exponents during the McKinley Hanna regime, there is no more sincere advocate of the reversal than Mr. Watson. To say that he is logical puts it mildly. He's ripe.

Current Comments

War and Trade Balance.

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat.)

"Does the oracle imagine that federal legislation controls the balance of trade?" inquires our Democratic contemporary. Not exactly. Our imagination endeavors to keep its feet on the ground. But it is quite apparent that a great effort is being made to make the country believe that our billion dollar trade balance is to be credited to the Wilson administration. "I don't know how I done it, but I did," crowed the man who fell out of the window and landed on his feet, and so they would have us attribute this result of the war to a kind of necromancy worked by the Democratic party subconsciously or in a fit of somnambulism. Now, a favorable balance of trade is a nice thing to have in the family. It contributes quite a good deal to our prosperity, and influences in a way the size and number of the pay envelope. It has always kept steady company with Republican government, for while federal legislation cannot control the trade balance it may have, and usually does, a strong influence in lifting or lowering it. Last year, when the war opened, Democratic legislation had weighed down our side of the scales and lifted the foreign side until the balance was against us. It would be against us now, and our money be going out faster than the foreigners' money would be coming in if the war had not nullified Democratic tariff laws in that respect and reversed the current of commerce. There would have been no such reversal under Republican administration, for the simple reason that the current would have been in the same direction—toward prosperity, or rather with prosperity, instead of away from it. Nothing short of a world cataclysm could have averted the disastrous consequences of the application of Democratic principles and theories to our laws of trade. The government is now wrestling with the problem of a deficit caused by increased expenditures and decreased revenues, but the country as a whole, because of the extraordinary foreign demand for some of our products, and the splendid crops, neither of which can be credited to the administration is in fairly good condition. Business is slowly recovering and the prospects are brighter than they have been for eighteen months, but there is no political capital for the Democratic party in the fact.

HOOSIER HISTORY

A Profitable Game of Make Believe

Prepared for the United Press by the Centennial department of the Indiana Historical Commission.

Many early settlers were able to purchase but small pieces of government land on their arrival, but improved the adjoining acreage which they intended to buy as soon as possible. These "squatters" as they were called were often harassed by land speculators who would buy their land partly improved at the expense of the squatter. A community in Western Montgomery county learned that agents of an Eastern syndicate had designs on land in that vicinity. One of the squatters got in touch with the agents at Crawfordsville, as a spy learned their plans and was employed to guide them in inspecting the desired lands, of which arrangement he informed his neighbors. When in the midst of the inspection the party was set upon in three directions by "Indians" who gave chase with war whoop and gun play. The guide, bending over his horse, led the way out of the ambushade. The pursuit was hot and was not let up until the undesirables were driven into Parke County, where they hurried across to Terre Haute.

Employees of Washington Navy
Yard Have Eight Cents an Hour
Clipped From Their Wages.

TO INCREASE PAY OF OTHERS

Reason is That Congress Failed to Appropriate Sufficient Sum to
Meet Obligations of Law.

Washington, July 22.—The utter helplessness of the Democratic Administration in handling government finances in anything like a businesslike manner has engendered more criticism and disgust than perhaps any other single feature of its activities. It flounders around like a blind horse in a bog. It is apparent that the Republicans will have to begin in 1917 to re-build from the ground up.

For the past two weeks our cap-and-bells Secretary of the Navy has been cavorting over the vaudeville boards blowing soap bubbles schemes for economy. He had a plan to economize in the building of battleships which the Navy Department publicity bureau promptly advertised over the country. It looked fine to the average Democratic officeholder whose ability to "figger" is limited to checking up his monthly salary, but, as the Providence Journal tersely expressed it, it contemplated little more than a rearrangement of the red lines in the ledger. There will not be enough real economy affected to keep in repair a submarine of the Daniels type—no small amount, by the way.

Recently our First Lord of the Admiralty announced that 1271 employees of the Washington navy yard were to have 8 cents a day clipped from their wages, giving as a reason an act of the Democratic Congress which makes it necessary for the government to increase the wages of 900 employees at naval proving grounds at Indian Head. Some more Peter and Paul financing.

In 1912, at the request of the congressional naval committee, a Republican Secretary of the Navy appointed a board consisting of three naval officers and three mechanics from the Washington navy yard to investigate the cost of living and wages paid at Washington and various cities designated as in its vicinity. The board found that a ten per cent increase was justified and included Indian Head in its finding, as being in the vicinity. The incoming Democratic Secretary of the Navy recommended the sum of $240,000 as sufficient to cover the increase; and threw out Indian Head because it was not represented on the board. This sum was appropriated by Congress for the fiscal year 1914 and 1915, and in the latter year the report of the naval committee made it mandatory that the Indian Head employees receive equal benefit with those of the yard at Washington.

It is this action of the committee which Secretary Daniels blames for his present dilemma. N. P. Alfias, president of the association of machinists employed by the government in the United States declares, however, that the $240,000 recommended by the Secretary was sufficient to increase the Washington yard employees only 7.8 per cent, and that "if the Navy Department had considered that $240,000 was not sufficient to provide the ten per cent increase intended by Congress, they were at liberty to ask for more," which, obviously, they neglected to do.

It is simply another case of an administration official being in wrong again, and at a somewhat embarrassing moment. As James O'Connell, president of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, said: "Since this country is in strained international relations it behooves the government to keep its workers and out let them go into private concerns which are looking for such machinists."

REMINGTON IS AFTER PLAYERS

Not Satisfied With Lineup and Has Released His First Baseman—Rushers There Sunday.

CAN RUSHVILLE REPEAT?

No Changes in Locals and Team Will go There Intending to Make it Two Straight.

Can Rushville repeat against Connersville? That is the question the fans here have been asking. The two teams play the second game of the present series Sunday at Connersville. Win, lose or draw the Rushers will enter the game with the intention of winning and if they do not it will be because Connersville gets the break.

Manager Remington promises a shake-up in his team. Connersville papers say he is not satisfied with the work of several of the men and has already released Weikle, the first baseman. It is stated that Manager Remington has been in communication with several players and the Rushers can expect to find several new men in the line-up.

Rushville will stand pat on its lineup believing that the team, by reason of having defeated Connersville twice can turn the trick again. Hewitt will start the game in the box and the fans believe he can again win. The Connersville fans are not satisfied with the work of Reiss and considerable knocking has been heard.

The bridge to the Connersville park has been put back in shape and the grounds will be ready for the invasion of the Rushers. The Connersville team is anxious to even up the series and for this reason one of the best games of the season is expected.

From present indications a large crowd of fans from this city will see the game. The contest will be called at 2:45 o'clock and by taking either the 12:20 or the 1:42 car the fans will get there in time for the game. The double umpire system will be used there Sunday. Remington had the privilege here last Sunday, but did not bring his umpire. The game must be on the square and the Rushville team will take the home umpire.

FATE OF JITNEY BUS IN BALANCE

Petition of Traction Company Which Would Put Them Out of Business is Heard.

TERRE HAUTE IS INTERESTED

Would Require Them to Carry Flagman and Get Franchise From City—is Second Attack.

MENACE TO PUBLIC.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 22.—The unregulated jitney bus is a menace to the public, according to Attorney Beasley of Terre Haute, representing the traction interests in the petition asking that they be placed under the jurisdiction of the public service commission. In his argument before the commission, Beasley said the jitneys would force the traction companies to give less complete service and then in a crisis such as a storm would not serve the public.

(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Indianapolis, Ind., July 22.—The fate of Indiana jitney busses hung in the balance here today. The state public utilities commission heard evidence on a petition filed by the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern traction company, which, if granted in its entirety, would place such hindrances against the busy little autos as to put them entirely out of business.

To fight the petition of the traction company, jitney bus owners and attorneys representing them flocked here from various cities in the state, but chiefly from Terre Haute, which is the city most effected by the jitney bus business.

The chief request of the petition is that the jitney busses be placed under the public service commission. Jitney bus operators say this in itself would be a blow to them financially, for at present they have practically no regulation. Other points in the petition, however, would in themselves make the jitney bus a losing proposition.

Here are some of the requests made in the petition:

That jitney busses be forced to carry flagmen to proceed the auto in case their route takes them over railroad tracks.

That they be forced to obtain franchises in cities.

That they made subject to the act which created the commission.

If jitney bus owners, in most cases private individuals, were forced to carry flagmen and obtain franchises, it is admitted they would be forced out of business.

The traction company's petition raises the objection on the grounds that the jitneys are not burdened with street paving or the paying of taxes, and do not have a franchise, and yet compete without regulation. The company declares this is unfair competition and describes the jitneys as menaces to the public.

Over 200 jitneys are now operating in Terre Haute. Of this number 150 belong to a local affiliated with the Central Labor Union.

The jitney owners, being organized have built up complete schedules and have proved tremendous competition for the traction company. The jitneys are popular with Terre Haute people. The city administration there has taken no action toward regulating the jitneys, though such action has been talked of.

Other cities where jitney busses thrive are Evansville, Hammond, Fort Wayne, Gary, Brazil, Peru, Muncie and others. Indianapolis was invaded but there was no rush to the jitneys, possible because of the 4 cent car fare here. Few jitneys are operating here.

This is the second attack on the jitney busses in this state. The other, engineered by Senator Al Zearing of Indianapolis, was in the nature of a bill introduced in the senate, placing the busses under the public service commission and requiring owners to file bonds to indemnify in case of accident. The bill met a speedy death.

Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader whose home is in Terre Haute, has taken up the jitney bus men's fight.

DEMOCRATS MEET AT FRENCH LICK

State Committee Makes Preliminary Plans For Next Year And Discusses Primary Law

WILL CHANGE THEIR RULES

(By United Press.)

French Lick, Ind., July 22.—With the announced purpose of making such organizations in the make-up of the state committee as are necessary under the new primary law and with the additional purpose of making preliminary plans for next year's campaign, the leaders of the Democratic party in Indiana met here today. As the party leaders arrived for the two day meeting this morning they were greeted by National Committeeman Thomas Taggart.

A number of the leading lawyers of the state gave their opinions on the primary law and the changes in the rules that the new law will make necessary.

District Attorney Frank C. Dailey, who has been mentioned for the nomination for Governor, is expected to be here tomorrow. Former Attorney General Thomas M. Honan will advise the party leaders. Many Democrats who have been stung by the "office seeking bee" are here.

Take a glass of Salts to flush out your Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. NEW PROBLEM BEING TACKLED

Sylvia Pankhurst And Her Band
Getting Busy Taking Care of
"War Babies" in England

MILK STATIONS ARE OPENED

Are Also Lending Efforts Towards
Better Conditions For Working
Women From Government

BY ED L. KEEN
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

London, July 12: (By Mail to New York)—While bishops and legislators and professional philanthropists are discussing what should be done about "war babies," the problem has been tackled in practical fashion by Sylvia Pankhurst and her formerly untroubled band of East London suffragettes.

Already "war babies" have begun to arrive in this section of the metropolis by the hundreds, many of them the children of "unmarried wives" of soldiers, now serving their country in Flanders or the Dardanelles. So far as possible these children and their mothers are being cared for by women whose principal activities a year ago were smothering windows. Sylvia and her co-workers started their war relief work in the East End almost immediately after hostilities opened.

"When the war broke out," said Miss Pankhurst today, "the offices of the East London Federation of Suffragettes were about to take a brief vacation after a period of very strenuous work, but the war cancelled all arrangements, and our labors were at once increased tenfold. Soldiers' wives, soldiers' mothers, and women thrown out of employment came flocking to us and crowded our offices in a constant stream. We opened distress bureaus in Bow, Bromley, Poplar, and later in Canning Town. Here we made, and still make, it our business to secure as quickly as possible from the various agencies concerned separation allowances and pensions for soldiers' and sailors' dependants, work or relief for the unemployed, and higher relief necessitate by war prices for those already assisted under the Poor Law.

"Within three days of the outbreak of war we started a free milk depot for babies, who were brought to us often literally at their last gasp for lack of the mother's milk that ceased because of her privations, or the cow's milk that there was no money to buy. Doctoring and nursing care were imperative, and soon our free milk centers had developed into regular mother-and-baby clinics. These undoubtedly have been the means of saving hundreds of baby lives which in this time of slaughter on the battlefields are of even more vital importance to the nation than before.

"But we found it impossible to supply milk to the baby when the whole family was needing food. We decided to attach to our centers cheap restaurants, where grown-up people, especially expectant and nursing mothers, might buy two-course meals for 4 cents and children could buy the same for 2 cents, and where we could supply free meals wherever it seemed advisable. These we call 'cost price' restaurants, although of course they are not self supporting, and never can be with food and fuel at war prices. We chose the name because we wanted one that should not suggest charity.

"The pressing cry was of workless women for employment. We found work for as many as we could in our restaurants—cooking, cleaning, waiting, washing up, making jams from the presents of fruit which our friends most generously sent to us during the summer and fall. To the women employed in our restaurants we pay ten cents an hour. At the same time we started giving out sewing for the women to do at home, and we also took in some workers on our own premises, paying to every adult worker a minimum of ten cents an hour, or $5 a week.

"Then we extended the employment section and opened a factory for the making of garments, boots and shoes, and toys."

Aside from these activities Sylvia and her followers have been unceasing in their efforts to secure from the government better working conditions for women. They have made repeated visits to the War Office and other government departments to urge that adult women should not be employed at less than ten cents an hour on army contracts or other work subsidized by public funds.

"And in the meantime," she added "we are continuing our work of education and preparation for Votes for Women; for every day makes it more and more apparent that women's help as enfranchized citizens is needed to do the nation's work."

LOUVAIN FULL OF SURPRISES

Seven-Tenths of City Was Not
Damaged by Fire Which Was
Kindled by Germans

ALSO FILLED WITH PATHOS

Art Treasures Are Safely Packed in
Hotel De Ville—Ruins Are Being Guarded

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN

Louvain, Belgium, May 11: (By Mail to New York)—Louvain is full of surprises and filled with pathos. One is surprised to find at least seven-tenths of the city untouched by the fire which the German army kindled to punish snipping warfare. One is surprised to see the Hotel De Ville still standing with not a trace of smoke, fire or shell. The beautiful carved statued facade is as white as paper. One is surprised too, to see the progress the inhabitants are making in cleaning and rebuilding their ruined city.

But all this cheerfulness in a city that was thought to be dead is almost covered up by the pathetic faces of the inhabitants whose homes were ruined.

I traveled through Louvain today by automobile. I tramped through the center of the city, examined the interior of the cathedral and later rode through the city on the train and saw the blocks and blocks of brick walls, pierced and blackened, but which one day were homes and stores. Louvain is undoubtedly a martyred city.

Colonel Burman, of the German army, who was our guide, was one of the first Germans to enter Louvain. He knows the history of the fighting and fire better than probably any other soldier now in Belgium. No one pities Louvain and its inhabitants more than this big German officer. The fire was started, he said, only as a last desperate effort of the Germans to stop the snipping warfare. Thousands of Germans, he declared were shot down as they marched through the city. In the cathedral alone he said the Germans found 400 Belgian rifles and many boxes of ammunition.

Today the art treasures of Louvain are securely packed in the basement of the Hotel De Ville. The art world owes the safety of these priceless works to a young German art student who was with the invading army. When this boy, who has studied in Louvain University, heard that the city would be set afire he rushed to the commander, told him of these valuable treasures. This youth then mapped out the location of these treasures and under his guidance they were removed from the burning territory to the basement of safety.

I was told that most of the paintings from the cathedral were saved but as I tramped about in the ruins I counted six large oil paintings still on the walls of the church but entirely unharmed. This cathedral appears to be about half destroyed. On one side the paintings and beautiful black and white marble altars are untouched. On the other only the bare stone walls remain. The church chimies have fallen from the loft to the cathedral floor and broken into a score of pieces.

But Louvain's ruins are guarded

as precious treasures by the inhabitants. The only souvenirs travelers pick up are postcards and the dust on their shoes.

Should you wish a birds eye view of Louvain imagine a city shaped like a large wheel with ten spokes running from the axle or center. Picture to yourself the cathedral, Hotel de Ville and Louvain university around the hub. The spokes are city streets and between are the houses and stores, for Louvain was a city of 400,000 people. Imagine then that fire swept away the houses between three spokes and destroyed everything around the hub except the Hotel de Ville and the Cathedral. Then you will see Louvain today.

Now stand before the Hotel de Ville and look to the west. Not a house or building is touched by fire or shell. A short distance away read the sign; "Cafe de Wilson." Now turn to the left and you see more city streets untouched and crowded with inhabitants. Business going on as usual. Nearby you read another sign: "Hotel de American." In a nearby restaurant you will find bread as white as you eat in America for it's bread from American wheat which the Belgian Relief Commission is supplying.

Down the street which you travel en route to Brussels you will see workmen piling up bricks from the ruined houses—for the inhabitants headed by the mayor are trying their best to rebuild the city.

Louvain is full of surprises and filled with pathos. But from what I saw today I do not believe it is a dead city. It will rise some day out of its ruins for with seven-tenths of the city untouched by fire or shell, with the beautiful Hotel de Ville still standing to inspire the people, it needs only peaceful, normal times to grow and prosper.

ST. JOHN'S EVE NOT OBSERVED

First Time For Centuries That Vigil is Not Kept—All Because of The War

USUALLY BIG CELEBRATION

No Lights in Rome Because of Danger From Austrian Bombs— an Ancient Custom

BY ALICE ROHE (U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Rome, June 23: (By Mail to New York)—St. John's Eve—and for the first time in centuries—more centuries than the dazed old woman by the steps of St. John Giovanna is kept.

"Mother of God" cries the old woman, "what has happened?"

"Don't you know—there is to be no vigil tonight!" replies a young Roman matron of the people, a baby nursing lustily and unashamed at her breast. "Did you not read in the papers that the vigil cannot be kept—because" and her voice became vibrant and her black eyes dilated—"because of the Austrians! We cannot light our candles, we cannot light the torches. The Innkeepers cannot illuminate their places nor can the venders put up their stalls. You see for yourself how the Piazza how all the squares from the Gate of St. John even to San Gerusalemma and Santa Maria Maggiore, are dark and without the sellers of snails, of lavender, of carnations, of garlic flowers, of terra cotta bells. It is a sad year, a terrible year—when we cannot keep our vigil to the good St. John."

The old woman gazed with startled eyes at the young mother, at me, at the darkened piazza. Then she raised her shriveled hands to the famous church before us.

"May the evil spirits blast them—the Austrians," she cried. No vigil for St. John! It is the first time it has ever happened. My mother, before me my mother's mother—have never missed a vigil of St. John. And before them my grandmother has told me and her grandmother told her they were always here, always with their candles and their suppers, eating snails, as did St. John when he wandered in the wilderness. How could I know there was no vigil?" she said simply turning her old eyes on me. "I cannot read—and no one told me. Oh, may God spare us from the Austrians!"

Both the young woman and the old one looked anxiously overhead, for throughout Rome there was a whisper that no illumination would be permitted of the Piazza of San Giovanni and those squares in the neighborhood—for reasons of discretion. And those reasons the two women scanned the blue sky with the moon shining triumphantly—were Austrian aeroplanes!

"They've killed my grandson," said the old woman, who had come all the way from beyond the Tiber near St. Peters to keep her accustomed vigil. "We got the news last week. Four other grand sons and a great-grandson are up there fighting them," she said fiercely, "God help us—they reach into our homes and now they reach into our religion. I came tonight so I could be among the first to enter the church for mass tomorrow morning on St. John's day. I come with a prayer for my grandsons fighting against the Austrians. I came to pray for all the grandsons and all the sons of Italy who are there in the North."

"But you can pray just the same," I suggested.

"No, it won't be the same," replied the old woman, "San Giovanni," she pronounced the name lingeringly,—"What must the good Saint think of it all!"

Throughout the moonlight drenched Piazza men and women were discussing what had befallen Rome. For this vigil of St. John's is one of the most ancient and picturesque of Roman customs. It is a festa of the people with an origin dating back so far that some persons place it even in the tenth century when the church was first dedicated to St. John.

Of late years the festival or vigil, has like all ancient customs, changed somewhat to a more riotous adventure, with noisy crowds slashing about with garlic stalks and interrupting the song contests. But the old custom of families bringing their candles and their suppers, spreading their tables on the ground eating snails in commemoration of St. John's locusts and wild honey, exists today as in the olden times. That is it did exist until tonight.

As locusts have never been as plentiful in Rome as in Kansas the snail has become the century old substitute for St. John's Day piece de resistance. The restaurants in the neighborhood of the church have always been brilliantly illuminated and the walls by the gate and the piazzas themselves in the neighborhood have been filled with illuminated booths making a blaze of light. Here venders of garlic flowers (which have the power to disperse witches) lavender, carnations, terra cotta bells, snails as well as other foods, cry their wares.

"I wish I could buy all the garlic flowers in the world this year," said the old woman "to chase away the evil spirits right into the midst of the Austrians."

A solitary garlic flower vender wandered across the Piazza thinking of the Roman village cut-ups whose habit it is to run through the crowds tickling the unsuspecting with the odorous plants. All kinds of diversions arose from the vigil which was originally instituted by the devout who wished to be on hand early in the mornings when the great doors of St. John Lateran were opened for the first mass in honor of the Baptist.

"But the war—it has changed it all—the war—the war," moaned the old woman.

But even the good St. John probably would not wish candles and torches lighted in his honor, if they might attract the deadly Austrian bomb throwing aeroplanes.

END OF CHILD LABOR IN SIGHT

Southern Secretary of Labor Committee Believes That Legislation Will Come Soon

GEORGIA IN NEED OF LAW

States That Next Session of Congress Will See Some Definite Legislation on Question

BY LOWELL MELLET (U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 22.—Dr. A. J. McKelway, southern secretary of the National Child Labor Committee, is certain that the end of child labor in America is practically in sight. The coming Congress is sure to enact the legislation for which the committee has been working in the last Congress and only failed of passage in the Senate through obstruction tactics.

Leaving Washington for Atlanta and Montgomery, where the legislatures of Georgia and Alabama, respectively, are in session, Dr. McKelway said:

"The child labor situation in Georgia and Alabama is another proof of the need of a Federal child labor law. Even when some of our states reach something like the proper standard of legislation for the protection of working children, the question of enforcement of the law remains. In Georgia there was created a few years ago a Bureau of Labor with a Commissioner of Labor in charge. He is assigned the work of gathering statistics relating to the industries of the state. He has one assistant and a totally inadequate expense account. He has been able to accomplish almost nothing with this inadequate force in the way of factory inspection and the enforcement of the child labor law of Georgia. A bill has been introduced urging the appointment of two factory inspectors, and I hope to help in persuading the Georgia legislature to enact this bill into law."

"In Alabama, the inspector of factories is also inspector of jails, asylums and poor houses. He is a most competent man. He has done great work in compelling cities and counties to erect modern sanitary jail buildings, and has also striven the utmost of his means to enforce the child labor law. He has one factory inspector and a deputy inspector connected with his office; and a bill introduced at the former session of the legislature, which passed the house, proposes to abolish his office altogether. I believe that the sober second thought of the people of Alabama will express itself emphatically against such a proposition, but the very threat of it shows the necessity for constant vigilance so long as the enforcement of child labor regulation depends upon the precarious will of state legislative bodies.

"I regard the prospect of the Federal child labor bill at the next session of Congress as excellent. The majority for it in the House, which was 233 to 43 in the last Congress, will be substantially increased; and I have reason to believe that nine-tenths of the Senate is in favor of the measure. With a good start early in the session of Congress, it will be impossible for a single objector to hold it up this time as Senator Overman did in the expiring hours of the last Congress. Undoubtedly the people of the United States are with a remarkable degree of unanimity in favor of the adequate protection of the working children from exploitation; and when Uncle Sam takes charge of the problem all the advocates of this reform will feel that the end of child labor in America is in sight."

Dandruff is a disease and 95 per cent of the people have it in one form or another, and the most dangerous kind of dandruff is the kind that gives no surface indication of its presence. AMERICAN NOTE IS DISCUSSED

an abbreviation of the rights of neutrals, and therefore any violation of the principles for which the American government contends resulting in a loss of American lives will be viewed as "unfriendly."

4. The representation which the American government has made in previous notes for disavowal of the intention to sink the Lusitania with Americans aboard and the request for reparation are reiterated with renewed insistence.

5. The American Government realizes the unusual and abnormal conditions which the present conflict has created in the conduct of maritime war, and is willing to act as an intermediary as between the belligerents to arrange a modus vivendi or any other temporary arrangement which do not involve a surrender by the United States of its right.

6. The proposals made by Germany to give immunity to American ships not carrying contraband and to four belligerent ships under the American flag are rejected with emphatic assertion that to accept such suggestion would be to admit Germany's right to set aside the American contention based on fundamental principles in international law—that neutrals may travel anywhere on the high seas on unresisting ships of any nationality, even if carrying contraband.

The note is about 1,200 words long. While nowhere in it is there any direct intimation of the course which the United States will pursue in the event of another disaster similar to the Lusitania tragedy, there are emphatic statements throughout the communication pointing out that the discussion of the principles involved has been virtually concluded and that future conduct of German submarine commanders will determine the responsibility for the continuance of friendly relations.

The statement that future transgressions will be regarded as "unfriendly" is taken in diplomatic usage to presage a break of friendly relations unless reparation and disavowal is forthcoming.

President Wilson it is understood, has considered fully and at length the construction which may be placed on the implications of the note and is prepared to deal with any new situation that may arise. He is hopeful and confident, however, it is said, that Germany, having already modified to a great extent the practice of her submarine commanders, will not take such precautions as seem necessary to prevent any action that would endanger friendly relations with the United States.

From 6 o'clock this morning until late to-night the President, with the exception of a few hours spent in recreation, was at work on a copy of the note. Secretary Lansing, who had drafted it, worked on the original and took it to the President to-night with several changes. The President agreed with Mr. Lansing's suggestions and to-morrow the document will be finally revised in phraseology before starting on its way to Berlin.

TWO KILLED IN STRIKE RIOTING

Standard Oil Guards Fire Into Charging Workmen as They Attempt to Scale Walls.

MILITIAN CALLED TO BAYONNE

Department of Labor Appoints Two Men to Act as Conciliators to Try to Bring Peace.

(By United Press.)

Bayonne, N. J.,—Two strikers were killed and many wounded in a series of rushes conducted against the walls of the Standard Oil Company plant by strikers. Among the injured were two children hit by stray bullets.

The New Jersey state militia was ordered out by Governor Fielder and was expected today. In response to an appeal from the sheriff the department of labor at Washington immediately appointed John A. Moffitt of this state and James Smith of Pennsylvania to act as conciliators. They are expected here tonight or early tomorrow.

Strikers rushed the walls and entrance of the company's plant time and again while the guards fired on them at close range. It resembled a pitch battle. So bitter was the fire that the strikers beat a hasty retreat.

Police would not attempt to estimate the number injured. At one o'clock this afternoon there were thirteen men in a local hospital. Some estimated the number shot at twenty-five, pointing out that the guards had fired directly into the closed massed, on-rushing strikers.

Three strikers were shot and probably fatally wounded and several others less seriously hurt in an attempt by the strikers to scale the walls of the Standard Oil company plant here today.

One hundred and fifty strikers hid behind a church a few yards from the factory and made a concerted rush to scale the walls. As their bodies appeared above the walls, a squad of company guards opened fire from the inside. Some of the strikers fired on the guards. It was reported that two of the guards were shot.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 22.—With the members of the City Editors' Assn., back in their home cities, two interesting facts learned during their trip here were receiving some attention. One was remarked on by City Editor Jewett of Terre Haute, who said that "90 per cent of the city editors didn't know the taste of beer," and the other was the fact that three city editors in Indiana own automobiles. The three are R. M. K. Yelvington of the Elwood Record, K. J. Sullivan of the Alexandria Times-Tribune and Hassal Tarkington Sullivan of the Richmond Palladium.

BLACKBERRY CROP IS SHORT

Although Yield of Raspberries Was Plentiful, Their Less Hardy First Cousin is Scarce.

MANY VINES ARE CUT DOWN

Weather Conditions Are Very Unfavorable to Their Growth This Season, it is Said.

News of the new wheat and discussions of the growth of the corn have all but overshadowed the late consideration of another crop, famous in jest and allied with outings, yet after all a thing of some actual importance. It is the berry crop.

The raspberry season has come and gone, and the yield of this delicious and delicate fruit was quite as heavy as usual. Less rugged and harder than their first cousin the blackberry briars, the raspberry bushes have yielded more easily to the plow and the spade and are far more rare. Each year sees a lessening of those acres on which they flourish in the wild state, and a slight, but not a proportionate increase in the number of the cultivated plants. For some reason not clearly known the blackberry crop this year is away below the average.

Blackberries, which take kindly to rough clay hillsides, usually yield most copiously on all improved and poorly regulated farms hence the peculiar spirit in which the crop is usually mentioned. Nevertheless, the total yield of this fruit in the county each year is great, and its use, as a desert, in sundry pastries, and in the canned form is important in the dietetic scheme of almost every rural household. The fondness for jellies, especially the raspberry jellies, held by local epicures to be more rich in flavor and more beautiful in tint than those of the blackberry, is known to extend to all classes of society.

Raspberry and blackberry picking usually takes on much of the character of picnicking, but this time the scarcity of the fruit will curtail this form of outing and cause those who do go out to hunt long and well if they bring home as many as a gallon.

CAN'T PARK IN 10 FEET OF PLUG

City Will Enforce Rigidly Provision of Traffic Ordinance Regarding Fire Hydrants.

MAY SOLVE PARKING EVIL

At Least, it Will Help, is the Opinion of Many—White Lines Painted on Streets.

White lines have been painted on the brick streets and sidewalks in the business district, giving the distance automobiles will be permitted to park at the street corners and alleys in relation to the fire hydrants. The regulation is not a new one as it is provided in the traffic ordinance that machines must not park within twenty feet of the street corners and fire plugs.

The reason for the white lines is to call attention to the fire hydrants and prevent the machines from coming too close to them. The traffic ordinance has not been rigidly enforced for some time and many auto drivers have paid little attention to the provisions regarding the parking near fire plugs and street crossings. The white lines were painted under the direction of Fire Chief Easley. While they are not placed at the twenty feet limit they are placed far enough to make the hydrants easy to get to in case of a fire. The lines are extended up on the sidewalks so the drivers of the machines can easily see them.

This traffic regulation may be the start towards solving the auto parking problem, it is stated. One of the chief objection on the parking of the machines in the business district was from the danger in case of a fire. With the machines parked at a safe distance from the fire plugs a large part of this danger is eliminated.

It is almost certain that there will be no radical steps taken towards regulating the parking of machines. The city council does not believe it should take the responsibility of passing a parking ordinance and the merchants of the city do not wish to offend any one by asking for an ordinance. This was clearly shown last Tuesday night. The merchants were asked to go before the council on the parking question and one man appeared.

City officials state that if the problem can be solved without passing any law it would be better for all concerned. One merchant stated today that he believed a majority of the country people were against any law here in Rushville calling for the parking of machines. The parking question is believed to be a "dead one" here, at least for this summer.

There were approximately thirty-five persons went to Carthage Wednesday night in automobiles for the chautauqua hosting trip. They enjoyed a fine concert by the Kilties band and returned home early Wednesday evening. E. B. SWEET IS SEVENTH TO GO TO THE FARM

Sheriff Cavitt Takes Man Sent up For 90 Days to State Institution Thursday.

NOT AS MUCH AS HE EXPECTED

Sheriff Cavitt took Charles Sweet to the state penal farm near Greencastle Thursday. Sweet was convicted in police court Wednesday afternoon on a "blind tiger" charge and fined $90 to which was added 90 days at the penal farm. Sweet increases the Rushville colony at the farm to seven members.

That Sweet was well satisfied with the verdict is shown by what he said to his wife following the returning of the verdict. After Sweet had been sentenced by Mayor Bebout, Mrs. Sweet broke down and cried. Her husband told her to stop crying saying "that's nothing to cry about as I thought I would get more than that."

BAND CONCERT BRINGS BIG CROWD

Many Persons on Streets For Hour's Program, Including Solos by Earl Robertson.

COME FROM OUTSIDE CITY

The Odd Fellows' band pleased a large crowd of people with a concert on the public square last night. Although it was brief, the concert was counted among the best efforts of the band. Many persons living outside of the city came to Rushville in their automobiles and enjoyed the concert. The sidewalks in the vicinity of the bandstand on both sides of Main street were jammed with people, making passage along them almost impossible. The streets were also lined with vehicles so that the police had trouble keeping a passageway opened up for traffic.

Earl Robertson was the soloist with the band last night. He first sang "Dream Days." He is ever popular here and the crowd applauded incessantly until he responded with another number. The band management has promised many features to entertain the crowds with the weekly concerts.

THIRD DAY WILL BE ATTRACTIVE

On Tuesday of Chautauqua Both Helen Keller and Welsh Singers Will be on the Program.

TWO CONCERTS TO BE GIVEN

Educational Marvel of Modern Times Will Talk on "Happiness" in Evening at 7:30 O'clock.

Tuesday, the third day of the Rush county chautauqua, will be one of the bright and shining spots on the program. The committee had already counted on Tuesday as one of the big days when it first put the Royal Welsh Male Singers on the program for that day, but when Helen Keller was procured for the third day of the chautauqua, there wasn't any doubt about the quality of the program for that day.

The Welsh singers will give a concert at two o'clock. At three-thirty o'clock Dr. Geisel will lecture. At seven-thirty in the evening Helen Keller will lecture and at 8:45 o'clock the Welshmen will give another concert.

The story of Helen Keller and her teacher, Mrs. John Macy, formerly Miss Sullivan, is one of the most marvelous educational stories of modern times. Miss Keller became blind and deaf at the age of nineteen months and although she has not been able to use the senses of sight and hearing since then, she has, through the most patient and skillful teaching of Mrs. Macy, become a highly educated woman. She was graduated from Radcliff College, the female department of Harvard, 1914, receiving the degree of B. A. Cum laude (with honor.) It would seem incredible that a person who practically could never see or hear should be able to take up higher education and even, as has been the case, become the author of books which she wrote in college, "The Story of My Life," has been translated into fifteen languages.

Mrs. Macy will in her lecture describe the circumstances which led to her becoming the teacher of Miss Keller and will detail the methods by which she instructed Miss Keller and thus opened the outside world to her, which seemed locked forever. All who have had anything to do with the training of children realize how almost superhuman must have been the task of teaching Miss Keller to speak for the first time.

Mrs. Macy will demonstrate her method of communicating with Miss Keller. These lectures will prove interesting to people who will thus have an opportunity very early to hear these world renowned people.

Helen Keller in her first appearance in Rushville will show the general public that sensitiveness of her hand which her friends have been familiar with for many years.

From infancy Helen Keller's hands have served her as eyes and ears; her finger tips are so acutely sensitive that she can not only read character in the hands of those she meets, but seldom makes a mistake in remembering people by the touch of their hands. A short while ago, Miss Keller met a few old friends and some new ones in her hotel parlor. The hands of the old friends were clasped eagerly and with a quick responsive greeting. One of the gentlemen present she had met but once—the day before—but as soon as she felt his fingers, she called him by name and spoke of the previous meeting.

"The hands of those I meet are dumbly eloquent to me," said Miss Keller. "The touch of some hands is an impertinence. I have met people

WARSAW WILL BE RAZED BY FLAMES

Germans Hear Their Goal Will be Set on Fire by Russians Before They Evacuate It.

MEN ARE ASSIGNED TO TASK

(By United Press.)

Berlin, July 22.—Warsaw is to be set in flames by the Russians and destroyed when Von Hindenberg's forces penetrate the last line of defenses before the city, according to information that reached here today.

The grand duke Nicholas is said capital shall not fall into the hands of the Germans with the government buildings and churches unscathed. He is reported to have assigned groups of men to the task of applying the torch all over the city when the Germans close in and force his armies to evacuate.

In confirmation of reports that the Russians are destroying everything in their retreat, dispatches received here this afternoon said the Slavs set fire to the principal buildings in Linau before evacuating the seaport.

The state public service commission has authorized Frank P. Lyons, Warren M. Knapp and Albert R. Martner to buy the property of the Spiceland Co-operative Telephone company for $14,500.

AMERICAN NOTE IS DISPATCHED

Reply to German Correspondence is Said to be in Nature of a Final Statement.

"UNFRIENDLY" IS WORD USED

Document Leaves Washington Wednesday Night and Reaches Berlin Some Time Thursday.

BULLETIN.

London, July 22.—The exchange Telegraph Amsterdam correspondent cabled the following today:

"Anti-American feeling in Berlin is again bitter on account of the published forecasts of the American reply in the Lusitania matter. The general opinion is that the situation is serious, as Germany is now prepared to modify her attitude."

(By United Press.)

Washington, July 22.—The German note was sent forward from Washington to Berlin at nine o'clock last night, state department officials announced today. It is believed practically all of the note had reached Berlin by ten o'clock this morning.

The note was sent by way of Copenhagen and will be decoded and translated in Berlin by Ambassador Gerard today for presentation to the German foreign office probably by Friay morning. Secretary of State Lansing is expected to make public contents of the document as soon as at has been delivered to the Berlin government. News of the dispatch came like a thunder clap. The administration had kept its plans so secret that not the slightest inkling had gained currency of its action until, as it was believed, most of the message had actually reached its destination.

Continuation of friendly German-American relations depend on the kaiser.

If the Lusitania incident is repeated in the case of another ship with the sacrifice of more American lives, a diplomatic break may result. This plain and emphatic warning was given in the American note which Secretary Lansing signed about seven o'clock last evening in the white house in President Wilson's presence and its transmission began two hours later.

Transmission, owing to the number of relays and the necessity for repetition backward to avoid errors, was slow, it was said, but Lansing said the communication would be decoded at the Berlin embassy and presented at the German foreign office Friday. He said it would be made public here Saturday.

The note is in the nature of a final statement by the United States of the interpretation that will be placed by this Government on future transgressions of American rights, and repeats that the American Government will leave nothing undone to stand by the position it has previously declared. Among the points in the new note are:

1. The assumption by the United States that Germany, by declaring submarine warfare to be a retaliatory measure against the alleged unlawful acts of her enemies, has admitted that the destruction of the unresisting merchantmen without warning is illegal.

2. German submarine commanders already have proved that they can save the passengers and crews of vessels and can act in conformity with the laws of humanity in making war on enemy ships.

3. The United States cannot allow the relations between the belligerents to operate in any way as

What Manager Rasor Has to Say About Silent Dramas.

Mary Fuller, as charming and dainty as ever, is featured in "The Girl Who Had a Soul," a Victor three-reel drama. The play, as a whole, teaches us that there is an instinct within us that "reaches the towers, till groping blindly above us for light it climbs to a soul in the grass and the flowers," and we are sure it will be one of Mary's best pictures. Tomorrow, matinee and night we will show a great flood picture, "The Torrent." This picture was made on the opening day at Universal City, and was witnessed by 50,000 people and they all declare it was the greatest picture they ever saw. In the great scene of the bursting dam, millions of gallons of water are released in one huge devastating flood. We will personally guarantee this picture to be first class in every respect.

Respectfully,
CHAS. R. RASOR.

The Republicans of Virginia cast one-fourth of all the votes in that State. The State government is Democratic, of course, and there is but one Republican on any of the various State boards or commissions. He holds a place in the agricultural bureau. This is the rule in Southern States; and in some Northern States where Democracy rules. In Republican States, however, there is always a minority representation on State boards—which indicates a spirit of tolerance foreign to the Democratic party. Now the Democratic platforms, State and National, are always found crying out against "Republican partisanship."

The statement of the National Treasury for Saturday, July 10 showed a balance of $73,963,615.53 on hand as compared with a balance of $136,343,611.17 covering the same items, two years ago, when Republican laws governed revenues and disbursements. The deficit as represented by the excess of all disbursements over all revenues for the fiscal year up to July 10th was $11,241,156.46.

Those who believe that Mr. Bryan has lost his hold upon his former followers will do well to reflect upon the news from San Francisco. Mr. Bryan made a speech at the Exposition there on Independence Day. The weather was raw, the wind was biting and misty. Mr. Bryan spoke out of doors. Yet the crowd that came, and stayed, and cheered him was the largest he has ever addressed in all his career.

The western revenue district of Missouri wants to be shown. In 1915 the people of that district paid $533,952 more in "war taxes" than they did in 1914. They do not believe the second year of the Wilson Administration was worth that much more to them.

A palmist who has studied the lines of Bryan's hands says they "denote poignant disappointments." And yet it appears that the most poignant of disappointments now in Bryan's hands is destined for someone else. To wit, for Woodrow Wilson.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

Root and Watson.

(Terre Haute Tribune.)

The Chicago Tribune has taken a canvas of leading men throughout country, and has arrived at the conclusion that Elihu Root is the logical person to be nominated for the presidency by the Republicans in 1916. If the pendulum is swinging back to absolute conservatism there is no man more logical than Root. Too, if the search is to be prolonged to find a logical running mate for Mr. Root, a logical man for the vice presidency, we submit the name of Mr. James Eli Watson of our own beloved state. Neither Root nor Watson has any qualms when presenting his claims as a conservative. Mr. Roosevelt and his followers were perfectly obvious of this fact when they felt the boot of these two eminent Republicans in the Chicago convention and the keenest diagnosis of public opinion failed.

ever since to detect the slightest remorse on the part of either of the statesmen. If the trend of the public is back from progressive democracy to hog-fight caucus rule, if the people are to reinstate commercial government which found its finest exponents during the McKinley Hanna regime, there is no more sincere advocate of the reversal than Mr. Watson. To say that he is logical puts it mildly. He's ripe.

Current Comments

War and Trade Balance.

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat.)

"Does the oracle imagine that federal legislation controls the balance of trade?" inquires our Democratic contemporary. Not exactly. Our imagination endeavors to keep its feet on the ground. But it is quite apparent that a great effort is being made to make the country believe that our billion dollar trade balance is to be credited to the Wilson administration. "I don't know how I done it, but I did," crowed the man who fell out of the window and landed on his feet, and so they would have us attribute this result of the war to a kind of necromancy worked by the Democratic party subconsciously or in a fit of somnambulism. Now, a favorable balance of trade is a nice thing to have in the family. It contributes quite a good deal to our prosperity, and influences in a way the size and number of the pay envelope. It has always kept steady company with Republican government, for while federal legislation cannot control the trade balance it may have, and usually does a strong influence in lifting or lowering it. Last year, when the war opened, Democratic legislation had weighed down our side of the scales and lifted the foreign side until the balance was against us. It would be against us now, and our money be going out faster than the foreigners' money would be coming in if the war had not nullified Democratic tariff laws in that respect and reversed the current of commerce. There would have been no such reversal under Republican administration, for the simple reason that the current would have been in the same direction—toward prosperity, or rather with prosperity, instead of away from it. Nothing short of a world cataclysm could have averted the disastrous consequences of the application of Democratic principles and theories to our laws of trade. The government is now wrestling with the problem of a deficit caused by increased expenditures and decreased revenues, but the country as a whole, because of the extraordinary foreign demand for some of our products, and the splendid crops, neither of which can be credited to the administration is in fairly good condition. Business is slowly recovering and the prospects are brighter than they have been for eighteen months, but there is no political capital for the Democratic party in the fact.

HOOSIER HISTORY

A Profitable Game of Make Believe

Prepared for the United Press by the Centennial department of the Indiana Historical Commission.

Many early settlers were able to purchase but small pieces of government land on their arrival, but improved the adjoining acreage which they intended to buy as soon as possible. These "squatters" as they were called were often harassed by land speculators who would buy their land partly improved at the expense of the squatter. A community in Western Montgomery county learned that agents of an Eastern syndicate had designs on land in that vicinity. One of the squatters got in touch with the agents at Crawfordsville, as a spy learned their plans and was employed to guide them in inspecting the desired lands, of which arrangement he informed his neighbors. When in the midst of the inspection the party was set upon in three directions by "Indians" who gave chase with war whoop and gun play. The guide, bending over his horse, led the way out of the ambushade. The pursuit was hot and was not let up until the undesirables were driven into Parke county where they hurried back to Terre Haute.

Employees of Washington Navy

Yard Have Eight Cents an Hour

Clipped From Their Wages.

TO INCREASE PAY OF OTHERS

Reason is That Congress Failed to

Appropriate Sufficient Sum to

Meet Obligations of Law.

Washington, July 22.—The utter helplessness of the Democratic Administration in handling government finances in anything like a businesslike manner has engendered more criticism and disgust than perhaps any other single feature of its activities. It flounders around like a blind horse in a bog. It is apparent that the Republicans will have to begin in 1917 to re-build from the ground up.

For the past two weeks our cap-and-bells Secretary of the Navy has been evincing over the vaudeville boards blowing soap bubbles schemes for economy. He had a plan to economize in the building of battleships which the Navy Department publicity bureau promptly advertised over the country. It looked fine to the average Democratic officeholder whose ability to "figger" is limited to checking up his monthly salary, but, as the Providence Journal tersely expressed it, it contemplated little more than a rearrangement of the red lines in the ledger. There will not be enough real economy affected to keep in repair a submarine of the Daniels type—no small amount, by the way.

Recently our First Lord of the Admiralty announced that 1271 employees of the Washington navy yard were to have 8 cents a day clipped from their wages, giving as a reason an act of the Democratic Congress which makes it necessary for the government to increase the wages of 900 employees at naval proving grounds at Indian Head. Some more Peter and Paul financing.

In 1912, at the request of the congressional naval committee, a Republican Secretary of the Navy appointed a board consisting of three naval officers and three mechanics from the Washington navy yard to investigate the cost of living and wages paid at Washington and various cities designated as in its vicinity. The board found that a ten per cent increase was justified and included Indian Head in its findings, as being in the vicinity. The incoming Democratic Secretary of the Navy recommended the sum of $240,000 as sufficient to cover the increase; and threw out Indian Head because it was not represented on the board. This sum was appropriated by Congress for the fiscal year 1914 and 1915, and in the latter year the report of the naval committee made it mandatory that the Indian Head employees receive equal benefit with those of the yard at Washington.

It is this action of the committee which Secretary Daniels blames for his present dilemma. N. P. Alfias, president of the association of machinists employed by the government in the United States declares, however, that the $240,000 recommended by the Secretary was sufficient to increase the Washington yard employees only 7.8 per cent, and that "if the Navy Department had considered that $240,000 was not sufficient to provide the ten per cent increase intended by Congress, they were at liberty to ask for more," which, obviously, they neglected to do.

It is simply another case of an administration official being in wrong again, and at a somewhat embarrassing moment. As James O'Connell, president of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, said: "Since this country is in strained international relations it behooves the government to keep its workers and out let them go into private concerns which are looking for such machinists."

Goodyear Fortified Tires Cost Users $5,000,000 Less

Our last price reduction—made February 1st—will save Goodyear users about five million dollars this year. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

And we shall spend $100,000 on research this year to find more improvements still.

They Are Yours

These extras belong to you. They mean less rim-cuts, less blowouts, less loose treads. They mean more rubber, more fabric, more mileage, less trouble. Most tire users know that, so Goodyear tires far outsell any other.

Prove it yourself this summer. It will bring you tire contentment.

Any dealer, if you ask him, will supply you Goodyear tires.

Men are now adopting Goodyear tires faster than we can supply them. We have never seen anything like it.

Yet Note This

Yet Goodyear Fortified Tires embody many extras. Five are costly features found in no other tire. The rest are found in few.

If we omitted those extras, we could save on this year's probable output $1,635,000. We could add that to our profits, yet Goodyear tires would look as good as now.

This year's improvements alone will cost us $500,000 this year. All to give you ex-

REMINGTON IS AFTER PLAYERS

Not Satisfied With Lineup and Has Released His First Baseman—Rushers There Sunday.

CAN RUSHVILLE REPEAT?

No Changes in Locals and Team Will go There Intending to Make it Two Straight.

Can Rushville repeat against Connersville? That is the question the fans here have been asking. The two teams play the second game of the present series Sunday at Connersville. Win, lose or draw the Rushers will enter the game with the intention of winning and if they do not it will be because Connersville gets the break.

Manager Remington promises a shake-up in his team. Connersville papers say he is not satisfied with the work of several of the men and has already released Weikle, the first baseman. It is stated that Manager Remington has been in communication with several players and the Rushers can expect to find several new men in the line-up.

Rushville will stand pat on its lineup believing that the team, by reason of having defeated Connersville twice can turn the trick again. Hewitt will start the game in the box and the fans believe he can again win. The Connersville fans are not satisfied with the work of Reiss and considerable knocking has been heard.

The bridge to the Connersville park has been put back in shape and the grounds will be ready for the invasion of the Rushers. The Connersville team is anxious to even up the series and for this reason one of the best games of the season is expected.

From present indications a large crowd of fans from this city will see the game. The contest will be called at 2:45 o'clock and by taking either the 12:20 or the 1:42 car the fans will get there in time for the game. The double umpire system will be used there Sunday. Remington had the privilege here last Sunday, but did not bring his umpire. The game must be on the square and the Rushville team will take the home umpire.

FATE OF JITNEY BUS IN BALANCE

Petition of Traction Company Which Would Put Them Out of Business Is Heard.

TERRE HAUTE IS INTERESTED

Would Require Them to Carry Flagman and Get Franchise From City—is Second Attack.

MENACE TO PUBLIC.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 22.—The unregulated jitney bus is a menace to the public, according to Attorney Beasley of Terre Haute, representing the traction interests in the petition asking that they be placed under the jurisdiction of the public service commission. In his argument before the commission, Beasley said the jitneys would force the traction companies to give less complete service and then in a crisis such as a storm would not serve the public.

(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Indianapolis, Ind., July 22.—The fate of Indiana jitney busses hung in the balance here today. The state public utilities commission heard evidence on a petition filed by the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern traction company, which, if granted in its entirety, would place such hindrances against the busy little autos as to put them entirely out of business.

To fight the petition of the traction company, jitney bus owners and attorneys representing them flocked here from various cities in the state, but chiefly from Terre Haute, which is the city most affected by the jitney bus business.

The chief request of the petition is that the jitney busses be placed under the public service commission. Jitney bus operators say this in itself would be a blow to them financially, for at present they have practically no regulation. Other points in the petition, however, would in themselves make the jitney bus a losing proposition.

Here are some of the requests made in the petition; That jitney busses be forced to carry flagmen to proceed the auto in case their route takes them over railroad tracks.

That they be forced to obtain franchises in cities.

That they made subject to the act which created the commission.

If jitney bus owners, in most cases private individuals, were forced to carry flagmen and obtain franchises, it is admitted they would be forced out of business.

The traction company's petition raises the objection on the grounds that the jitneys are not burdened with street paving or the paying of taxes, and do not have a franchise, and yet complete without regulation. The company declares this is unfair competition and describes the jitneys as menaces to the public.

Over 200 jitneys are now operating in Terre Haute. Of this number 150 belong to a local affiliated with the Central Labor Union.

The jitney owners, being organized have built up complete schedules and have proved tremendous competition for the traction company. The jitneys are popular with Terre Haute people. The city administration there has taken no action toward regulating the jitneys, though such action has been talked of.

Other cities where jitney busses thrive are Evansville, Hammond, Fort Wayne, Gary, Brazil, Peru, Muncie and others. Indianapolis was invaded but there was no rush to the jitneys, possible because of the 4 cent car fare here. Few jitneys are operating here.

This is the second attack on the jitney busses in this state. The other, engineered by Senator Al Zeigler of Indianapolis, was in the nature of a bill introduced in the senate, placing the busses under the public service commission and requiring owners to file bonds to indemnify in case of accident. The bill met a speedy death.

Engene V. Debs, the Socialist leader whose home is in Terre Haute, has taken up the jitney bus men's fight.

DEMOCRATS MEET AT FRENCH LICK

State Committee Makes Preliminary Plans For Next Year And Discusses Primary Law

WILL CHANGE THEIR RULES

(By United Press.)

French Lick, Ind., July 22.—With the announced purpose of making such organizations in the make-up of the state committee as are necessary under the new primary law and with the additional purpose of making preliminary plans for next year's campaign, the leaders of the Democratic party in Indiana met here today. As the party leaders arrived for the two day meeting this morning they were greeted by National Committeeman Thomas Taggart.

A number of the leading lawyers of the state gave their opinions on the primary law and the changes in the rules that the new law will make necessary.

District Attorney Frank C. Dailey, who has been mentioned for the nomination for Governor, is expected to be here tomorrow. Former Attorney General Thomas M. Honan will advise the party leaders. Many Democrats who have been stung by the "office seeking bee" are here.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts to flush out your kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever. Here you have a pleasant, efficient lithia water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

NEW PROBLEM BEING TACKLED

Sylvia Pankhurst And Her Band
Getting Busy Taking Care of
"War Babies" in England

MILK STATIONS ARE OPENED

Are Also Lending Efforts Towards
Better Conditions For Working
Women From Government

BY ED L. KEEN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent.)

London, July 12: (By Mail to New York)—While bishops and legislators and professional philanthropists are discussing what should be done about "war babies," the problem has been tackled in practical fashion by Sylvia Pankhurst and her formerly untroubled band of East London suffragettes.

Already "war babies" have begun to arrive in this section of the metropolis by the hundreds, many of them the children of "unmarried wives" of soldiers, now serving their country in Flanders or the Dardanelles. So far as possible these children and their mothers are being cared for by women whose principal activities a year ago were smashing windows. Sylvia and her co-workers started their war relief work in the East End almost immediately after hostilities opened.

"When the war broke out," said Miss Pankhurst today, "the offices of the East London Federation of Suffragettes were about to take a brief vacation after a period of very strenuous work, but the war cancelled all arrangements, and our labors were at once increased tenfold. Soldiers' wives, soldiers' mothers, and women thrown out of employment came flocking to us and crowded our offices in a constant stream. We opened distress bureaus in Bow, Bromley, Poplar, and later in Canning Town. Here we made, and still make, it our business to secure as quickly as possible from the various agencies concerned separation allowances and pensions for soldiers' and sailors' dependants, work or relief for the unemployed, and higher relief necessitate by war prices for those already assisted under the Poor Law.

"Within three days of the outbreak of war we started a free milk depot for babies, who were brought to us often literally at their last gasp for lack of the mother's milk that ceased because of her privations, or the cow's milk that there was no money to buy. Doctoring and nursing care were imperative, and soon our free milk-centers had developed into regular mother-and-baby clinics. These undoubtedly have been the means of saving hundreds of baby lives which in this time of slaughter on the battlefields are of even more vital importance to the nation than before.

"But we found it impossible to supply milk to the baby when the whole family was needing food. We decided to attach to our centers cheap restaurants, where grown-up people, especially expectant and nursing mothers, might buy two-course meals for 4 cents and children could buy the same for 2 cents, and where we could supply free meals wherever it seemed advisable. These we call 'cost price' restaurants, although of course they are not self-supporting, and never can be with food and fuel at war prices. We chose the name because we wanted one that should not suggest charity.

"The pressing cry was of workless women for employment. We found work for as many as we could in our restaurants—cooking, cleaning, waiting, washing up, making jams from the presents of fruit which our friends most generously sent to us during the summer and fall. To the women employed in our restaurants we pay ten cents an hour. At the same time we started giving out sewing for the women to do at home, and we also took in some workers on our own premises, paying to every adult worker a minimum of ten cents an hour, or $5 a week.

"Then we extended the employment section and opened a factory for the making of garments, boots and shoes, and toys."

Aside from these activities Sylvia and her followers have been unceasing in their efforts to secure from the government better working conditions for women. They have made repeated visits to the War Office and other government departments to urge that adult women should not be employed at less than ten cents an hour on army contracts or other work subsidized by public funds.

"And in the meantime," she added "we are continuing our work of education and preparation for Votes for Women; for every day makes it more and more apparent that women's help as enfranchized citizens is needed to do the nation's work."

LOUVAIN FULL OF SURPRISES

Seven-Tenths of City Was Not
Damaged by Fire Which Was
Kindled by Germans

ALSO FILLED WITH PATHOS

Art Treasures Are Safely Packed in
Hotel De Ville—Ruins Are
Being Guarded

BY CARL W. ACKERMAN

Louvain, Belgium, May 11: (By Mail to New York)—Louvain is full of surprises and filled with pathos. One is surprised to find at least seven-tenths of the city untouched by the fire which the German army kindled to punish snipping warfare. One is surprised to see the Hotel De Ville still standing with not a trace of smoke, fire or shell. The beautiful carved statued facade is as white as paper. One is surprised too, to see the progress the inhabitants are making in cleaning and rebuilding their ruined city.

But all this cheerfulness in a city that was thought to be dead is almost covered up by the pathetic faces of the inhabitants whose homes were ruined.

I traveled through Louvain today by automobile. I tramped through the center of the city, examined the interior of the cathedral and later rode through the city on the train and saw the blocks and blocks of brick walls, pierced and blackened, but which one day were homes and stores. Louvain is undoubtedly a martyred city.

Colonel Burman, of the German army, who was our guide, was one of the first Germans to enter Louvain. He knows the history of the fighting and fire better than probably any other soldier now in Belgium. No one pities Louvain and its inhabitants more than this big German officer. The fire was started, he said, only as a last desperate effort of the Germans to stop the snipping warfare. Thousands of Germans, he declared were shot down as they marched through the city. In the cathedral alone he said the Germans found 400 Belgian rifles and many boxes of ammunition.

Today the art treasures of Louvain are securely packed in the basement of the Hotel de Ville. The art world owes the safety of these priceless works to a young German art student who was with the invading army. When this boy, who has studied in Louvain University, heard that the city would be set afire he rushed to the commander, told him of these valuable treasures. This youth then mapped out the location of these treasures and under his guidance they were removed from the burning territory to the basement of safety.

I was told that most of the paintings from the cathedral were saved but as I tramped about in the ruins I counted six large oil paintings still on the walls of the church but entirely unharmed. This cathedral appears to be about half destroyed. On one side the paintings and beautiful black and white marble altars are untouched. On the other only the bare stone walls remain. The church chimneys have fallen from the loft to the cathedral floor and broken into a score of pieces.

But Louvain's ruins are guarded

as precious treasures by the inhabitants. The only souvenirs travelers pick up are postcards and the dust on their shoes.

Should you wish a birds eye view of Louvain imagine a city shaped like a large wheel with ten spokes running from the axle or center. Picture to yourself the cathedral, Hotel de Ville and Louvain university around the hub. The spokes are city streets and between are the houses and stores, for Louvain was a city of 400,000 people. Imagine then that fire swept away the houses between three spokes and destroyed everything around the hub except the Hotel de Ville and the Cathedral. Then you will see Louvain today.

Now stand before the Hotel de Ville and look to the west. Not a house or building is touched by fire or shell. A short distance away read the sign: "Cafe de Wilson." Now turn to the left and you see more city streets untouched and crowded with inhabitants. Business going on as usual. Nearby you read another sign: "Hotel de American." In a nearby restaurant you will find bread as white as you eat in America for it's bread from American wheat which the Belgian Relief Commission is supplying.

Down the street which we travel en route to Brussels you will see workmen piling up bricks from the ruined houses—for the inhabitants headed by the mayor are trying their best to rebuild the city.

Louvain is full of surprises and filled with pathos. But from what I saw today I do not believe it is a dead city. It will rise some day out of its ruins for with seven-tenths of the city untouched by fire or shell, with the beautiful Hotel de Ville still standing to inspire the people, it needs only peaceful, normal times to grow and prosper.

ST. JOHN'S EVE NOT OBSERVED

First Time For Centuries That Vigil is Not Kept—All Because of The War
USUALLY BIG CELEBRATION
No Lights in Rome Because of Danger From Austrian Bombs—An Ancient Custom

BY ALICE ROHE
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)
Rome, June 23: (By Mail to New York)—St. John's Eve—and for the first time in centuries—more centuries than the dazed old woman by the steps of St. John Giovanna is kept.

"Mother of God" cries the old woman, "what has happened?" "Don't you know—there is to be no vigil tonight" replies a young Roman matron of the people, a baby nursing lustily and unashamed at her breast. "Did you not read in the papers that the vigil cannot be kept—because" and her voice became vibrant and her black eyes dilated—"because of the Austrians! We cannot light our candles, we cannot light the torches. The Innkeepers cannot illuminate their places nor can the vendors put up their stalls. You see for yourself how the Piazza how all the squares from the Gate of St. John even to San Gerusalemma and Santa Maria Maggiore, are dark and without the sellers of snails, of lavender, of carnations, of garlic flowers, of terra cotta bells. It is a sad year, a terrible year—when we cannot keep our vigil to the good St. John."

The old woman gazed with startled eyes at the young mother, at me, at the darkened piazza. Then she raised her shriveled hands to the famous church before us. "May the evil spirits blast them—the Austrians," she cried. No vigil for St. John! It is the first time it has ever happened. My mother, before me my mother's mother—have never missed a vigil of St. John. And before them my grandmother has told me and her grandmother told her they were always here, always with their candles and their suppers, eating snails, as did St. John when he wandered in the wilderness. How could I know there was no vigil? she said—simply turning her old eyes on me. "I cannot read—and no one told me. Oh, may God spare us from the Austrians!"

Both the young woman and the old one looked anxiously overhead, for throughout Rome there was a whisper that no illumination would be permitted of the Piazza of San Giovanni and those squares in the neighborhood—for reasons of discretion. And those reasons the two women scanned the blue sky with the moon shining triumphantly—were Austrian aeroplanes! "They've killed my grandson," said the old woman, who had come all the way from beyond the Tiber near St. Peters to keep her accustomed vigil. "We got the news last week. Four other grand sons and a great-grandson are up there fighting them," she said fiercely. "God help us—they reach into our homes and now they reach into our religion. I came tonight so I could be among the first to enter the church for mass tomorrow morning on St. John's day. I come with a prayer for my grandsons fighting against the Austrians. I came to pray for all the grandsons and all the sons of Italy who are there in the North." "But you can pray just the same," I suggested. "No, it won't be the same" replied the old woman, "San Giovanni," she pronounced the name lingeringly. "What must the good Saint think of it all?" Throughout the moonlight drenched Piazza men and women were discussing what had befallen Rome. For this vigil of St. John's is one of the most ancient and picturesque of Roman customs. It is a festa of the people with an origin dating back so far that some persons place it even in the tenth century when the church was first dedicated to St. John.

Of late years the festival or vigil, has like all ancient customs, changed somewhat to a more riotous adventure, with noisy crowds slashing about with garlic stalks and interrupting the song contests. But the old custom of families bringing their candles and their suppers, spreading their tables on the ground eating snails in commemoration of St. John's locusts and wild honey, exists today as in the olden times. That is it did exist until tonight.

As locusts have never been as plentiful in Rome as in Kansas the snail has become the century old substitute for St. John's Day piece de resistance. The restaurants in the neighborhood of the church have always been brilliantly illuminated and the walls by the gate and the piazzas themselves in the neighborhood have been filled with illuminated booths making a blaze of light. Here vendors of garlic flowers (which have the power to disperse witches) lavender, carnations, terra cotta bells, snails as well as other foods, cry their wares.

"I wish I could buy all the garlic flowers in the world this year," said the old woman "to chase away the evil spirits right into the midst of the Austrians."

A solitary garlic flower vender wandered across the Piazza thinking of the Roman village cut-ups whose habit it is to run through the crowds fiddling the unsuspecting with the odorous plants. All kinds of diversions arose from the vigil which was originally instituted by the devout who wished to be on hand early in the mornings when the great doors of St. John Lateran were opened for the first mass in honor of the Baptist.

"But the war—it has changed it all—the war—the war," moaned the old woman.

But even the good St. John probably would not wish candles and torches lighted in his honor, if they might attract the deadly Austrian bomb throwing aeroplanes.

END OF CHILD LABOR IN SIGHT

Southern Secretary of Labor Committee Believes That Legislation Will Come Soon
GEORGIA IN NEED OF LAW
States That Next Session of Congress Will See Some Definite Legislation on Question

BY LOWELL MELLET
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)
Washington, July 22.—Dr. A. J. McKelway, southern secretary of the National Child Labor Committee, is certain that the end of child labor in America is practically in sight. The coming Congress is sure to enact the legislation for which the committee has been working in the last Congress and only failed of passage in the Senate through obstruction tactics.

Leaving Washington for Atlanta and Montgomery, where the legislatures of Georgia and Alabama, respectively, are in session, Dr. McKelway said:

"The child labor situation in Georgia and Alabama is another proof of the need of a Federal child labor law. Even when some of our states reach something like the proper standard of legislation for the protection of working children, the question of enforcement of the law remains. In Georgia there was created a few years ago a Bureau of Labor with a Commissioner of Labor in charge. He is assigned the work of gathering statistics relating to the industries of the state. He has one assistant and a totally inadequate expense account. He has been able to accomplish almost nothing with this inadequate force in the way of factory inspection and the enforcement of the child labor law of Georgia. A bill has been introduced urging the appointment of two factory inspectors, and I hope to help in persuading the Georgia legislature to enact this bill into law.

"In Alabama, the inspector of factories is also inspector of jails, asylums and poor houses. He is a most competent man. He has done great work in compelling cities and counties to erect modern sanitary jail buildings, and has also striven the utmost of his means to enforce the child labor law. He has one factory inspector and a deputy inspector connected with his office; and a bill introduced at the former session of the legislature, which passed the house, proposes to abolish his office altogether. I believe that the sober second thought of the people of Alabama will express itself emphatically against such a proposition, but the very threat of it shows the necessity for constant vigilance so long as the enforcement of child labor regulation depends upon the precarious will of state legislative bodies.

"I regard the prospect of the Federal child labor bill at the next session of Congress as excellent. The majority for it in the House, which was 233 to 43 in the last Congress, will be substantially increased; and I have reason to believe that nine-tenths of the Senate is in favor of the measure. With a good start early in the session of Congress, it will be impossible for a single objector to hold it up this time as Senator Overman did in the expiring hours of the last Congress. Undoubtedly the people of the United States are with a remarkable degree of unanimity in favor of the adequate protection of the working children from exploitation; and when Uncle Sam takes charge of the problem all the advocates of this reform will feel that the end of child labor in America is in sight."

AMERICAN NOTE IS DISCUSSED

an abbreviation of the rights of neutrals, and therefore any violation of the principles for which the American government contends resulting in a loss of American lives will be viewed as "unfriendly."

4. The representation which the American government has made in previous notes for disavowal of the intention to sink the Lusitania with Americans aboard and the request for reparation are reiterated with renewed insistence.

5. The American Government realizes the unusual and abnormal conditions which the present conflict has created in the conduct of maritime war, and is willing to act as an intermediary as between the belligerents to arrange a modus vivendi or any other temporary arrangement which do not involve a surrender by the United States of its right.

6. The proposals made by Germany to give immunity to American ships not carrying contraband and to four belligerent ships under the American flag are rejected with emphatic assertion that to accept such suggestion would be to admit Germany's right to set aside the American contention based on fundamental principles in international law—that neutrals may travel anywhere on the high seas on unresisting ships of any nationality, even if carrying contraband.

The note is about 1,200 words long. While nowhere in it is there any direct intimation of the course which the United States will pursue in the event of another disaster similar to the Lusitania tragedy, there are emphatic statements throughout the communication pointing out that the discussion of the principles involved has been virtually concluded and that future conduct of German submarine commanders will determine the responsibility for the continuance of friendly relations.

The statement that future transgressions will be regarded as "unfriendly" is taken in diplomatic usage to presage a break of friendly relations unless reparation and disavowal is forthcoming.

President Wilson it is understood, has considered fully and at length the construction which may be placed on the implications of the note and is prepared to deal with any new situation that may arise. He is hopeful and confident, however, it is said, that Germany, having already modified to a great extent the practice of her submarine commanders, will not take such precautions as seem necessary to prevent any action that would endanger friendly relations with the United States.

From 6 o'clock this morning until late to-night the President, with the exception of a few hours spent in recreation, was at work on a copy of the note. Secretary Lansing, who had drafted it, worked on the original and took it to the President to-night with several changes. The President agreed with Mr. Lansing's suggestions and to-morrow the document will be finally revised in phraseology before starting on its way to Berlin.

TWO KILLED IN STRIKE RIOTING

Standard Oil Guards Fire Into Charging Workmen as They Attempt to Scale Walls.

MILITIAN CALLED TO BAYONNE

Department of Labor Appoints Two Men to Act as Conciliators to Try to Bring Peace.

(By United Press.)

Bayonne, N. J.,—Two strikers were killed and many wounded in a series of rushes conducted against the walls of the Standard Oil Company plant by strikers. Among the injured were two children hit by stray bullets.

The New Jersey state militia was ordered out by Governor Fielder and was expected today. In response to an appeal from the sheriff the department of labor at Washington immediately appointed John A. Moffitt of this state and James Smith of Pennsylvania to act as conciliators. They are expected here tonight or early tomorrow.

Strikers rushed the walls and entrance of the company's plant time and again while the guards fired on them at close range. It resembled a pitch battle. So bitter was the fire that the strikers beat a hasty retreat.

Police would not attempt to estimate the number injured. At one o'clock this afternoon there were thirteen men in a local hospital. Some estimated the number shot at twenty-five, pointing out that the guards had fired directly into the closed masses, on-rushing strikers.

Three strikers were shot and probably fatally wounded and several others less seriously hurt in an attempt by the strikers to scale the walls of the Standard Oil company plant here today.

One hundred and fifty strikers hid behind a church a few yards from the factory and made a concerted rush to scale the walls. As their bodies appeared above the walls, a squad of company guards opened fire from the inside. Some of the strikers fired on the guards. It was reported that two of the guards were shot.

City Editors of State Are Not so Bad Off at That

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., July 22.—With the members of the City Editors' Assn., back in their home cities, two interesting facts learned during their trip here were receiving some attention. One was remarked on by City Editor Jewett of Terre Haute, who said that "90 per cent of the city editors didn't know the taste of beer," and the other was the fact that three city editors in Indiana own automobiles. The three are R. M. K. Yelvington of the Elwood Record, K. J. Sullivan of the Alexandria Times-Tribune and H. S. Tarkington Sullivan of the Richmond Palladium.

Huntington, Ind., July 22.—Eight boxes of lemons in lemonade form, 25 pounds of sugar to sweeten it, 3,500 packages of crackerjack and 125 gallons of ice cream, were provided by Harry Worden, the children's friend, for the picnic for the youngsters of the city at the fair grounds today. This was known as "Worden Day" by the children. Worden is a bachelor and is the idol of every Huntington boy and girl.

BLACKBERRY CROP IS SHORT

Although Yield of Raspberries Was Plentiful, Their Less Hardy First Cousin Is Scarce.

MANY VINES ARE CUT DOWN

Weather Conditions Are Very Unfavorable to Their Growth This Season, It Is Said.

News of the new wheat and discussions of the growth of the corn have all but overshadowed the late consideration of another crop, famous in jest and allied with outings, yet after all a thing of some actual importance. It is the berry crop.

The raspberry season has come and gone, and the yield of this delicious and delicate fruit was quite as heavy as usual. Less rugged and hardy than their first cousin the blackberry briars, the raspberry bushes have yielded more easily to the plow and the spade and are far more rare. Each year sees a lessening of those acres on which they flourish in the wild state, and a slight, but not a proportionate increase in the number of the cultivated plants. For some reason not clearly known the blackberry crop this year is away below the average.

Blackberries, which take kindly to rough clay hillsides, usually yield most copiously on all improved and poorly regulated farms hence the popular spirit in which the crop is usually mentioned. Nevertheless, the total yield of this fruit in the county each year is great, and its use, as a desert, in sundry pastries, and in the canned form is important in the diet scheme of almost every rural household. The fondness for jellies, especially the raspberry jellies, held by local epicures to be more rich in flavor and more beautiful in tint than those of the blackberry, is known to extend to all classes of society.

Raspberry and blackberry picking usually takes on much of the character of picnicking, but this time the scarcity of the fruit will curtail this form of outing and cause those who do go out to hunt long and well if they bring home as many as a gallon.

MAYOR HEARING CASE

The state case against Mrs. Corn Fields Jackson, charged with using obscene language, was being heard this afternoon by Mayor Hebert. The prosecuting witness was Mrs. Odie Clifford, who alleges that Mrs. Jackson used vulgar language in the presence of the Clifford children. Mrs. Jackson was fined $15 and costs, and sentenced to thirty days in jail. The sentence was suspended.
